

Nocturnal bumps and jumps – parasomnia or epilepsy?

Evelina Pajediene, Lithuania

Nocturnal paroxysms might be challenging both for the clinician and the patient and requiring differential diagnostic knowledge of epilepsy and comorbid sleep disorders, such as parasomnias, sleep-related breathing disorders and sleep-related movement disorders. In her talk Evelina Pajediene will present two clinical cases from sleep and epilepsy labs with diagnostic and treatment pitfalls, that will be interactively discussed with the audience.
